

Waterfront Leathers – V&A Wharf

October 2015

The “old” Waterfront Leathers had full glass frontage but a bulkhead prevented a lot of natural light entering the shop and limited chances at effective display.

Two large pane windows straddle an entrance portal with the bulkhead now removed. After inserting the LED panels, wallwashers and tracklights, the appearance and brightness of the shop is immediately apparent.

OLD vs NEW

Waterfront Leathers last did a store renovation at the end of 2010 utilizing our first generation LED downlights and tubes for the revamp. As part of the V&A Wharf tenant policy, shopowners need to keep a fresh look for their stores as well as align themselves with the Landlord’s environmental policy of reducing carbon footprints.

Waterfront Leathers, obviously happy with the technology originally installed, again turned to Lighting Revolution to assist them in meeting reduced consumption charges as well as to improve lighting levels for customers and merchandising.

Besides the internal lighting upgrade, a vastly improved window and display are used maximum lighting opportunity to display their goods. We hope the new store and lighting design translates to more sales!

General and Specific

We designed a “ceiling of light” for the central bulkhead to light up general illumination levels of merchandise on the floor. We then used Robus Rock Star Wallwashers to light up the side shelving and finally installed a new LED track system allowing narrow-angle spotlights to highlight and accentuate specific podium and detailed stock.

After all upgrades, we managed to maintain a 20W/square meter requirement whilst at the same time, improving the lux levels in the area dramatically.

In addition, the expensive ostrich leather stock doesn’t get damaged by heat in the display cabinets.

LED Panel lights, Wallwashers and Spots dominate the store.
